

We invite you to submit an abstract to present at the IAM North American Conference 2022 which will be held in Denver, CO on 3 - 6 October. We are looking for quality presentations intended for developing and advancing the profession and practice of asset management for the benefit of individuals, organizations and society as a whole. Those submitting abstracts do not need to be members of the IAM. The conference is designed:

- To link asset management professionals and stakeholders, including board members with leading edge practices and benefits
- To support asset management professionals and promote a community furthering the discipline of Asset Management
- Provide networking opportunities for business and personal relationships
- Attract multiple sectors – transportation, utilities, energy, manufacturing, governments, real estate, etc
- Promote collaboration, integration across sectors, functions, levels including the front line for solutions

The conference is a forum for information exchange, problem-solving, and collaboration among asset owners, consultants, vendors and other interested stakeholders (regulators, insurers, etc.). Please submit your proposal to share your insights and experiences for the benefit of the larger asset management community.

Note: you need to create a separate account for your proposal submission. Your IAM login will not work on this site.
